Course Description

Journalism internships are a way for students to extend their education beyond the classroom and gain valuable real-world experience that might lead to a career. Credit internships must involve journalistic training under proper supervision in the editorial or production department of an established news organization. If you are taking a credit internship, you must enroll in the internship course offered by NYU Journalism. Most students have a maximum of 4 internship credits to use during their studies. The internship class is available for variable credit. At the time of registration, students can elect to earn 1, 2, 3 or 4 credits for the course.

We will communicate with you through Brightspace throughout the semester, and it is your responsibility to read your NYU emails and upload your assignments on time. Call or email us if you need to discuss any situations at your internship. We want to know as soon as possible, and help you navigate any on-the-job challenges.

Learning Objectives

In this course, students will:

- Demonstrate awareness of journalism's core ethical values
- Gain experience navigating within a professional journalism organization.
- Demonstrate critical thinking, independence, and creativity appropriate to the role of journalism in a democratic society
- Interview subjects, conduct research, and evaluate information
- Work ethically in pursuit of truth, accuracy, fairness, and diverse perspectives
- Use technological tools and apply quantitative concepts as appropriate

Course Structure

Students taking a credit internship in the fall should intern no more than two days a week. (Minimum requirement for the semester is 100 hours total.) Discuss start and end dates with your internship supervisor and confirm with career services.

During the fall semester, you also must attend one mandatory class where students participate in a group discussion. Our office will contact you through Brightspace once the semester starts with details on how to sign up for the class held virtually via Zoom. It will be held on a Friday and you'll need to let your supervisor know you may need a couple hours off to attend.

Missing days at your internship: You're expected to remain in contact with your supervisor via phone, email or Zoom on your scheduled days.

Contact Career Services immediately if you stop going to your internship. Taking time off is acceptable, but should be cleared with your employer first and discussed with career services. If you're sick, you need to notify your internship supervisor by phone and email as soon as possible. (Don't simply send an email and assume that's okay.) Make sure you communicate with your internship supervisor about any assignments you're working on and how they can be completed when taking time off. Let Career Services know if you ever miss more than two days of your internship.

Discussing problems at your internship: Career Services is available to help you develop strategies for success, or sort through problems at your internship. Your communication is important. It's one of the best ways we have to monitor student experiences inside media organizations — so don't hesitate to contact Career Services — especially if you're being asked to do a disproportionate amount of administrative work, or experiencing any threatening or harassing behaviors from a supervisor or colleague. Please write “Urgent” in the subject heading of such an email. Call us if you don't hear back within 24 to 48 hours.

Please note that the Title IX Office also has resources available should you have concerns with sex discrimination, sexual harassment, sexual violence, or sexual misconduct:

We can work with you regarding your credit and grade if you need to terminate an internship early.

Course Requirements

Students are expected to write two essay “log” assignments and turn them into Brightspace in a timely manner (instructions can be found at the end of this syllabus.)

Grading

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS will receive a Pass/Fail grade for the internship class. Remember Pass/Fail grades cannot count toward your journalism major. The points go toward your overall degree.

Final grades will be calculated as follows:

Essay assignment due dates, Fall 2022:

- Log 1 – Monday, October 17 – 30% of Grade
- Log 2 – Monday, November 21 – 20% of Grade

Make note of these deadlines and email sylvan.solloway@nyu.edu and craigh.barboza@nyu.edu if you need an extension for medical reasons or other special circumstances.

Supervisor Evaluation – 50% of Grade

We will reach out to your supervisors for evaluations towards the end of the semester. Students can ask for information about their evaluations, unless the supervisors request otherwise.

*If your supervisor changes during the semester, you must alert us immediately. Email sylvan.solloway@nyu.edu, craigh.barboza@nyu.edu and sophie.lombumier@nyu.edu the contact info for your new supervisor including title, email and phone number.

Your grade will be based on the quality/timeliness of your essays and your supervisor's evaluation.

(Note: Do not assume you will automatically pass this course because you report to your internship every day and hand in your assignments. To pass you need to do well in your internship and write thoughtful, well-written essays.)

Submitting Your Work

For this course, you will need to upload your assignments via Brightspace. It is important that you save the assignment on your computer as a Microsoft Word document. Log one should be called LastNameFirstName1.doc and Log 2 should be called EmployerYourLastName2.doc.

Headers

Please include a header on the top of your logs and follow this sample below listing your name concentration and word count, etc.:

Last name, first name

Status: Junior (or Senior, etc.)

CNN, Digital (List your employer, section)

Semester: Fall 2022

Word Count: 519 (please provide your exact word count and stay within guidelines!)

Writing Your Log 1 Essay

Your first assignment is a 500 to 600-word first-person reflection on your internship. This paper is an opportunity to demonstrate what you have learned about journalism from your experience so far and reflect on how it alters your outlook on the field.

Papers will be judged on the quality of writing:

- structure (How well is your paper organized?)
- content (What are the details of your internship?)
- style (Is your paper clear and concise?)
- transitions (Do you tie together different parts of your log?)
- and professionalism and writing (Are there grammatical errors, misspellings, run-on or passive sentences? How closely did you stick to the assigned word count?)

Potential talking points for your LOG 1 essay:

- What insight or ideas do you have about journalism, based on your internship?
- How did you handle your assignments?
- What have you learned about the company — and the goals of your specific division? What particular challenge does the company face today or in years ahead?
- Describe examples of how you've shown initiative. Are you pitching?
- How has your impression of the internship or your co-workers changed?
- How does this internship compare to your previous journalism experience?
- What particular skills are you learning, or do you wish you had learned prior to this internship?
- If you encountered any problems at your internship, how have you dealt with them?
- Success stories or bylines?
- Have you been given any positive or constructive feedback? Do you want more?
- Conclusion/Plans to succeed through the remainder of your internship?

Writing Your Log 2 Student Internship Review

Your final assignment is a brief review (less than 100-200 words) of your internship. It is written for other students interested in that internship, and tells them what to expect.

LOG 2s will be available as a reference for students next semester. Once they are edited, all Log 2s will be anonymous (so please do not identify editors or other staff by name). And be honest.

In your review, include a description of what the publication/show does as well as your internship duties.

When writing your LOG 2, it may be helpful to think about the following talking points:

- Do you recommend this internship to other students? Explain.
- How much time did you spend on various tasks, including grunt work?
- What is the potential for getting clips? (Do you have any advice on how to pitch this particular outlet or suggestions for how future interns can succeed?)
- How does this internship compare to others you may have done?
